CAMDEN, July 2.—Walter Carter, a young butcher and member of the firm of Roberts & Carter, had a fearful battle with rats last night.

The rodents had been seen in large numbers in the store, and he traced them to the smoke house.
Carter closed the door and started to kill the rats with a club.
When he had gotten through, it was found he had killed 102. It only took him twenty minutes to kill the rats. He was bitten by some of them, but not badly.
